Clay's All Right.

Kate Field's Washington in speaking of the marriage of Cassius M. Clay of Kentucky was preparing to marry his young sweetheart against the combined wishes of his family, that so venerable a man should have so much will. Whoever felt this surprise testified thereby that he did not know Mr. Clay. He has always possessed that quality of courage which we call "desperate" for lack of a better term. One incident in his earlier life proves this. In 1845 he was engaged in the publication of the Free American at Lexington Kentucky, when a brief editorial article gave deep offence to the people of the town, being regarded as incendiary in character. A large meeting of the best citizens was held, and it was resolved that Mr. Clay's paper could not be longer published there. To meet that threat Mr. Clay had cast in Cincinnati two pieces of fine artillery of the very best metal, in the composition of which was about two hundred dollars' worth of silver. These he mounted in his office, bearing on the entrance to a pair of double doors which had been arranged with a chain so as to open only a certain width. Besides this he had enlisted a dozen bold men. The rest of his arrangements were equally direct. He prepared for the escape of his force when the office should become no longer tenable, and placed a keg of powder so that he could easily touch it off, intending, as soon as his force had escaped and the room had been filled by the mob, to blow up the office, his enemies and himself to perish, like Samson, in the ruins. No man has ever doubted that he would have carried out his program, but fortunately the excitement of the preparation and the waiting for the attack brought on brain fever, and the office was peacefully removed while he was unconscious to Cincinnati, where publication was resumed after his recovery.

A Scandal Breeder.

"They say" is the most productive plant in the garden of gossip. The man or woman who is always loaded with information about what "they say" can usually be relied upon to spread a scandal as the winds of the west spread fire to the dry prairie grass. When a lot of people, either male or female get together and commence cackling about what they say, it generally results in a scandal, whether it exists or not. It is a kind of smokeless powder which the human bushwhackers use in their attacks upon society. It enables them to fire their pellets of malice and mischief without being seen. To cowardly to come out openly and make their charges, and having no real authority for the damaging assertions or insinuations, they skulk down behind the expression above quoted and significantly relate all about what "they say" throwing in many knowing winks and nods, all the time expressing sorrow, surprise and regret, in true hypocritical style. It is a plan never to give "they say" as authority for a statement, particularly if it is of a nature to damage the good name of any person.—Ex.

Robert Louis Stevenson Dead

A telegram from Auckland announces that news has been received there of the death of Robert Louis Stevenson at his home in the Samoan Islands. His death was sudden and was caused by apoplexy. His body was buried on the summit of Mt. Fala, 13,000 feet high.

Stevenson was one of the greatest English novelists of modern times, and many critics claim him to have been the greatest. He was born at Edinburgh in 1850 and educated for an engineer. His career has been particularly interesting to Western people as he married a Western woman.

His "Silverado Squatters" was a record of his California life, while his other books are too well known to be mentioned.

A New Railroad.

R. J. Laws, the Assistant Superintendent of the C. & C. railroad started from Winnemucca Monday morning, where he is to commence the preliminary survey for a new road to run from Winnemucca to Kennedy, the new and promising mining camp. If Mr. Laws finds the conditions favorable for the construction of a road between these points, the work of construction will be commenced early in the Spring by the C. & C. Railroad Company.

Earthquake.

Yesterday morning at 9:10 a. m. this city was visited by another earthquake, which was by far more severe than any of the series that has visited us to date.

The saying that this is regular "earthquake weather" will be rather shaken. The first quake was during a cold spell and the one of this morning was on the mildest morning the weather service has recorded in many weeks. Earthquakes don't consult the weather, but come at all times of the year.

It shook up things in great shape in E. B. Rail's store, all the hanging chandeliers and other goods hung from the ceiling were in motion fifteen minutes after the shock. George Tyrell ran for the street and expected every minute to be his last. There was no damage done however.

On the Comstock the shock was of more violence. In all the brick buildings the occupants rushed out into the street. Dispatches from Dayton report a severe shock there, while in Reno no perceptible disturbance was noticed.

Turkey Shoot.

Don't be a sucker if you fail to take in Wiggins' Turkey Shoot next Sunday at Empire. Wiggins has had a special correspondence with Foster the weather sharp and Foster says he will "pull" for good weather Sunday and Christmas day.

Wiggins has had to hire an extra man to take care of the turkeys. They are so fat that when they fall over the man has to go along and stand them on their feet. One of his largest birds fell over Monday and nearly perished in the storm, being unable to get up.

The chickens have been trained to stand with their feathers the wrong way that the shot may enter easier.

The dance on Christmas eve will be one of the best ever given in the Riverside town and Wiggins has two men employed waxing and smoothing the floor.

Holiday Goods.

Go to E. B. Rail and purchase your dinner tea sets, glass ware and fancy decorated ware of the latest designs, lamps and plated goods. He has the largest stock in the State in his line. Goods will be sold at less than San Francisco prices. Go and see the large stock of goods, whether you buy or not.

Skates.

John G. Fox has just received a case of Peck and Snider's celebrated American Club skates. For sale from one dollar up.

Blixt, the self-confessed murderer of Miss Ging, pleaded not guilty in the District Court of Minneapolis yesterday.
